DISTRICT ATTORNEY KILLED

J. W. GURLEY OF NEW ORLEANS SHOT IN HIS OFFICE.

Murdered by a Client Who Was Dissatisfied With Management of a Case-Murderer an Oplum Flend Who Had Beer Acquitted of Larceny-Had a Grievance

NEW ORLEANS, July 20 .- J. Ward Gurley, District Attorney of New Orleans, was murdered in his private office to-day by Lewis W. Lyons, a cotton clerk with a grievance. Lyons after killing Gurley attempted suicide, shooting himself in the head. The wound was supposed at first to be mortal, but the murderer, it is now thought, may recover.

Gurley was shot twice through the breast, near the heart, and twice in the arm, dying almost instantly. There was no one present the office at the time of the murder. Mr. Gurley's partner in the next office heard a violent quarrel and then four shots. Gurlev staggered from the office. Lyons pushing him out. The District Attorney fell just outside of the door. Lyons locked himself in the office and then emptied the two remaining cartridges in his revolver at his head. He refilled his revolver in his excitement. He fired wildly, but the bullet reached the brain, rendering him unconscious but not causing death.

Lyons, who has led a life of dissipation for several years, was arrested recently charged with larceny of a diamond pin. He was tried and acquitted of the theft but became bitter over it, and employed the firm of Gurley & Mellen, of which Gurley was a member, to prosecute the detectives who arrested him. The case was handled by Mr. Mellen.

The case was lost and Lyons became much wrought up, believing it a reflection on his integrity. He became violently abusive of his attorneys and told several persons that he intended to kill Gurley and then commit suicide. Gurley was warned of his threat but did not believe he was in danger. Lew Lyons, as he was known, was a man excellent family. His father was one the wealthiest merchants of New Orleans. He himself had married well, had several children, and occupied a responsible place with the Maginnis Warehouse Company He became infatuated with a dissolute woman, deserted his family, took to drink, lost his place and finally became an opium fiend. While under the influence of o he was regarded as dangerous. He on a debauch on Saturday night and Sun-day and to-day's murder was the outcome. Mr. Gurley was regarded as one of the ablest prosecuting attorneys in this region, a man of the highest standing and to be counted on in all movements for the supssion of crime or vice. He was a native New Orleans, 51 years old, his father having been Assistant United States District Attorney here for years. He was a graduate of Washington and Lee University Virginia, and Tulane University in New rleans. In 1878 he was appointed United States Register in Bankruptcy and from 1880 to 1883 he was Assistant City Attorney of

EX-REBEL HERE AS MINISTER

ENTER"EL MOCHO," VENEZUELA'S NEW ENVOY AT WASHINGTON.

Reception Committee Meets the Veteran Fighter Down the Bay-He's a Man of Peace Now. He Says-"Let's Forget the Past"-Honored by His Old Foe.

Gen. José Manuel Hernandez ("El Mocho"), for years Venezuela's foremost political and revolutionary character, who has now been appointed his country's Minister at Washington, arrived here yesterday on the steamer Caracas, from La Guayra. A committee of local Venezuelans was waiting in a revenue cutter down the bay to greet him. In the party were Nicolas Hernandez, the General's eldest son, and Señor Augusto F. Pulido, Venezuelan Chargé d'Affaires at Washington. The others were Consul-General Rincones, Carlos A. Scholtz, Eduardo Meyer and Henry T. Cadenas. They gave the veteran an enthusiastic welcome and Gen. Hernandez greeted his son, whom he had not seen for years, with a long and hearty embrace. As he stood on the deck, tall, erect and with his broad shoulders thrown back, "El Mocho" hardly looked like a man who has spent a good part of thirty-three years on the battlefield. Yet in this space of time he has fought against the Venezuelan Government in more than a dozen rebellions. He has the reputation of having participated in more uprisings than any other man in South America.

Gen. Hernandez wore a suit of white duck, which accentuated the deep bronze that the tropical sun has left upon his The customs inspectors, acting instructions from Washington, passed his baggage without examination, as they did that of his youngest son, Juan Guillermo Hernandez, and Antonio Parra, who accompanied him. The party were then escorted to the Waldorf-Astoria.

When reporters saw him last evening the General was in good humor but was not communicative. He might easily be mistaken for a Frenchman. He has a broad, high forehead, hair worn pompadow, high dorek brown avec and a longdour, keen dark brown eyes and a long, cur ed, thin nose. The General wears a rather long, square beard and a long mustache, which, like his hair, are gray. His voice is soft and gentle. Asked how many

Gen. Hernandez retains the leadership of the Liberal Nationalist party and has recently secured several Cabinet places and other high offices for his partisans. ## CABS BUMP ISLES OF SAFETY.

NEW TERROR AT NIGHT IN THE TENDERLOIN ROADWAY.

Big. Flat Stones for Pedestrians to Jump Up on When an Auto Charges on Them -No Lights at Night and the Auto Can Do Hurdle Stunts-Cantor's Idea.

Five "isles of safety" which were established in the Tenderloin yesterday kept the truckmen and automobilists in a state of mind. From the top of any of them the pedestrian can wiggle his fingers by day at his nose and at his foes. At night the cabs run into the isles. A crew of teamsters from the Bureau of Highways was busy yesterday afternoon hauling stones which were put in the middle of the roadway at different points along Broadway. Four of these stones resemble grindstones and are four feet in diameter and a foot thick.

The other is a square of about three feet. The square one was deposited in the middle of Twenty-fourth street just east of the Broadway car tracks. Of the round ones, one was set in the triangle made by the car tracks at Twenty-third street and Broadway, another in the Fifth avenue roadway at Twenty-third street, a few feet north of the westbound car track a third in Broadway just north of Thirty-third street and east of the up track and a fourt in Broadway just south of Thirty-fourth street and west of the down track. The stones worried the Tenderloin police and the men on past became greatly averand the men on post became greatly exercised by nightfall when no one had shown up to put red lights on the obstacles. Auto-mobiles and cabs that plied Broadway began experiments in unexpected hurdle jumping. No end of complaints were made at the Tenderloin station and Police Headquarters was finally appealed to. The following reply was received: "Those things are isles of safety. Leave

A rumor was soon afloat that it was scheme of Deputy Commissioner Piper's. The latter said that the idea had not been fathered by him, but had, to the best of his knowledge, originated in the Highways Bureau. Capt. Piper said:

"As near as I know, the scheme is to prevent the redestrian from being run, over vent the pedestrian from being run over when crossing those congested points. He may jump upon the stone when a truck or other vehicle appears to be bearing down upon him."

When asked for an opinion on the practicability of the scheme, Capt. Piper asked to be excused from answering, but laughingly added: "It appears to me that the safest thing to do would be to crawl under the stones."

the stones."

James G. Collins, Superintendent of Highways, admitted that the credit for the scheme belonged to his department, and said that Borough President Cantor had suggested it. He said: "Those stones project above the roadway, and persons cross-ing from one side of the street to the other can get up on them and not be run over. They are a good deal like a sidewalk. You don't see a wagon running up on the side walk, and of course they won't run up on those stones. A person crossing the street usually jumps out of the way of one vehicle in front of another, but now he can jump up on one these stones. We've had lots of complaints about these crossings, and we think that this scheme will do away with

Mr. Collins was much surprised when told that no lights had been put on the stones last night. He said he would send men to put danger signals on them. The Com-missioner said that he had not as yet de-ception of the stones would be taken cided whether the stones would be taken

GOOD ROOF GARDEN SHOWS, And Three Popular Theatres Are Still Defying the Hot Westher.

Three of the local playhouses still defy the warm weather and continue to draw good sized houses. The "Wizard of Oz" s in its twenty-seventh week at the Maiestic and the "Earl of Pawtucket" has now been making people laugh in this city for nearly the same length of time. The "Runaways" at the Casino is the newest of the three shows, but Fay Templeton's clever acting is making its stay a long one. There is a first class show on the Crystal Garden roof every night except Sunday.

Blanche Ring sings, every night about 9 o'clock, the three songs that made her a star. In addition there is the "Darling of the Gallery Gods," the English Pony Ballet and Ned Wayburn's Minstrel Misses. Emma Carus, Junie McCree and William Cameron all have good rôles in the "Darling of the Gallery Gods." There is no better roof garden show in town. The Grand Circle roof garden, over the Majestic Theatre, is now open and there is a concert there nightly. Aga, the mystery, is the star attraction on the Paradise roof. "Otoyo," the Japanese comic opera, is running along smoothly on the Madison Square roof. There were several changes in the cast last night. The steamer Grand m the cast last night. The steamer Grand Republic is a floating roof garden every night in the week except Friday. The "Bohemian Girl" is being sung this week at Terrace Garden. The Lion Palace roof is a great resort for folks of German birth. r's Casino, at Jerome avenue and 162d street, is also sought by many people.

There is an attractive midsummer bill at Keith's, headed by James Dolan and Ida Lenharr in a sketch called "Taking Chances." Julius Chambers's successful playlet, "A Pair of Boots," is being played the Processes." playlet, "A Pair of Boots, is 52 ing played at Proctor's Twenty-third street house. "Kindred Souls," a farce, is at the Fifth Avenue, "Humbug" at the Fifty-eighth street, and "My Sweetheart" at the 125th street house. Tony Pastor's continuous show is always interesting and of first class quality. The Leipziger Orchestra is giving good music at the Eden Musée Manhattan Beach has Lew Dockstader's minstrel company, Pain's fireworks and Shannon's Twenty-third Regiment Band. Every one who goes to Coney Island sees some of the many attractions at Luna Park Bostock's Animal Show is drawing big crowds. The Johnstown Flood is also a realistic novelty worth seeing.
